Alex is a cheerful, energetic young man who is looking for a permanent home. He has made great strides with his behavior and has been engaged in treatment. Alex is in a good mood the majority of the time. He is very bright, and is generally respectful to teachers and staff.

Alex is very smart, and when he applies himself he does very well on assignments. He is working on improving relationships with peers and has done better overall with boundaries and decreasing instigative behaviors.

He enjoys being outside, and is also very interested in vacuum cleaners. Alex is generally able to perform his activities of daily living with a moderate amount of prompting. He is eager to move back into the community and build new friendships.
